(I am still practising.) At 11 o'clock I had been practising for two hours. (I began at 9 o'clock and at 11 o'clock I was still practising.) The past perfect simple vs past perfect continuous For activities that can continue for a long time we can use both the simple and continuous (work, run, study, travel, sleep ...). There is practically no difference in meaning, but the continuous is more usual in English. Stephen was pretty tired. He had worked all day. Stephen was pretty tired. He had been working all day. In other cases these two forms have a completely different meaning. Before midnight Paul had translated the article. (He finished his work.) Before midnight Paul had been translating the article. (He did not finish it. He was still translating at that moment.) If we refer to a number of individual events or events that were repeated, we must use the simple. Before the lesson ended they had written three tests. (three individual completed activities) But: It was exhausting. They had been writing tests since the lessons started. (one uninterrupted incomplete activity) activity)
